

EDHEC - Business School

Lille - Nice

PROFILE

Founded in 1906, EDHEC Business School is the largest business school in France with 5 campuses in Lille, Nice, Paris, Singapour and Londres and offers the country's largest choice of English-language management programmes. The school offers high-level training in management to over 5500 students representing 76 nationalities in its undergraduate and graduate degree programmes as well as in its continuing education and executive training programmes. Consistently ranked among the Top 5 French business schools, EDEC is one of the first institutions in the world to have obtained the prestigious triple of EQUIS, AACSB and AMBA accreditations.

Strenghts

EDHEC offers the widest choice in France of management degrees taught in English. The school's 21,000 alumni have found jobs with the world's leading companies, including Procter & Gamble, Coca Cola, L'Oréal, Xerox, and Nestlé. The alumni network is active in more than 100 countries.

The French weekly Le Point ranked EDHEC France's best school for finance in recognition of the quality of its research and the job placements of its graduates.

The 2009 rankings of the Financial Times place EDHEC's Master in Management 11th among the top 50 European master's programs.

The Economist Intelligence Unit ranks EDHEC second in the world among MBA programs in the category «potential to network.»

EDHEC has again been named France's most internationalized grande école by Figaro/Express's publication Réussir. With 11 master's programs taught entirely in English, EDHEC offers a wider choice of programs in English than any other French business school.

EDHEC's research efforts are more widely cited than those of any other school in continental Europe in the five most important international economic press outlets—the Financial Times, the Wall Street Journal (Europe and Asia), The Economist, and BusinessWeek.

The thoroughly international orientation of EDHEC's educational programs and its close links with firms provide students with real-world perspectives and competencies for international careers.
